The School of Human Environmental Sciences at the University of Arkansas prepares students for a wide variety of professional careers in education, industry, business, government, and community services. The school is concerned with improving the quality of life for individuals and families as they exist and function in society. Human environmental sciences draw knowledge from research, from the physical, biological, and social sciences, and from arts and humanities. It relates this knowledge to an understanding of individuals' and families' needs and goals for food, clothing, shelter, management of resources, and human development and relationships. The School of Human Environmental Sciences has made a substantial contribution to the development of individuals and families through undergraduate and graduate preparation of human environmental scientists and through research in human nutrition, foods, human development, family sciences, apparel and textiles.

Four majors are offered in the School of Human Environmental Sciences:

- Apparel Studies (http://catalog.uark.edu/archives/2013-14/undergraduatecatalog/collegesandschools/dalebumperscollegeofagriculturalfoodandlifesciences/schoolofhumanenvironmentalscienceshesc/apparelstudiesapst)
